Missing School

Fact:

Missing only five days a year of primary school will add up to half a term in total by the time you leave Year 6.

Question:

In all honesty, how many times have you had a day off school over the last six or seven years that you didn't need to take?

Task:

Discuss your answer with your partner or table, and work out how much school time you have all missed in total. Think about days when you felt a little bit poorly and probably could have come in to school, and holidays you may have taken during school time.
